To Rev. Samuel May Jr.

Springfield, Mass.: The writer saw a letter by Rev. May in the Springfield Republican. Disapproves strongly of Garrison and his doctrines on the ground that they represent a harmful fanaticism. The writer apparently thinks the Abolitionists should be left strictly alone.

To Rev. Samuel May Jr.

„Sterling, Mass.. The writer deplors the attempts of certain individuals to represent themselves as Abolitionists when they were in fact pro-Slavery partisans. Discusses his early preaching experiences, and tells about one of his first anti-Slavery sermons. Says that Stowe, Vermont was a "nest of pro-Slavery men". Thinks that the Unitarians are missing a great opportunity in the Temperance cause.

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

No. 131

Stoneham, Mass.. The writer, in behalf of the Stoneham Female Anti-Slavery Society, informs the addressee that her Society has pledged itself to furnish a table with articles to the amount of fifty dollars for the Mass. Anti-Slavery Fair. They have only twenty-seven members — "labouring women who discharge the cares & duties of a family..." Enumerates the articles in preparation, and asks for suggestions. "We assist the Mass. Anti-Slavery Fair in preference to the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society." They regret the recent movements and "feel assured the root of the whole matter originates in sectarian prejudices." The writer gives her view on the issue of assistance and, more fully, on the controversy over women's rights.

«Sudbury, (Mass.). Tells about lecturing in Townsend. Went from there to Groton. Met Dr. Amos Farnsworth, whom he describes as a staunch Abolitionist. Mentions a severe storm. Lectures in Groton. Refers to his "slow way of speaking." Found the people of Stow, Mass. unresponsive to his Anti-Slavery lecture. Calls the addressee's attention to a controversy being carried on in the columns of Zion's Herald. Went to Marlboro, Wayland, Weston and Sudbury. The Unionist is responsible for all the Abolitionism in Sudbury. Praises Mr. Wilder, the Orthodox minister in Concord. Had an argument with Dr. Ripley. Met Wm. Moody Emerson, who was much prejudiced against Garrison. The editor of the Concord Freeman is a colonizationist. The weather has been very rainy and windy. Praises a young colored minister named Caples(?).

Taunton, Mass.. Regrets that so little help (for the Boston fair) can be had in Taunton. "The female Society has become extinct." Infers that those influenced by "new organization" are working privately, as Miss (Martha?) Ball's letters have been privately circulated. As "it is the opinion of all the old friends that a woman will do more than a man, on account of the political excitement," they have requested Mr. John A. Collins to send Abby Kelley to stay two or three weeks and lecture.

Templeton, Mass.. The writer declares that the letters from which extracts have been printed in the addressee's book Right and Wrong in Massachusetts are forgeries. Having privately and publicly made this declaration, the writer has at the same time exonerated the addressee from the guilt of forgery. The writer requests the addressee to give him the letters or certified copies, or, if she does not possess them, to mention the names of the persons who showed her the letters. The writer has reason to believe that he knows "the guilty authors of this deed." Refers to an imputation, by Oliver Johnson, that the writer was the author of a letter resembling those quoted, a [redacted] that he publicly denied. The writer criticises the addressee's having appended to her book letters from S. J. May and himself without consulting either of them.

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

Uxbridge, (Mass.). The writer sends a "trifling contribution" with apologies. Recalls the pleasure of "breathing a purely anti-Slavery atmosphere" last year and the inspiration derived from Mrs. Follen. The writer is grateful also to W. Phillips and hopes to secure a (lecture?) appointment from him for this winter.

Walpole, Mass.: The writer has taken the Non-Resistance paper with a Mr. Engley, so that he might assist her in promoting the cause, and is now taking another subscription for "brother" Aaron Guild for the same purpose. The writer has to deny herself to make contributions, but would "rather dress plain and poor and live on plain and cheap food than to have the slaves in bondage." Is puzzled by a passage in the New Testament. Is grieved by "what Mr. Joshua Leavitt writes about Mr. Garrison that good man."

Walpole, (Mass.?). Having received three Non-Resistance papers and subscribed to only two, the writer inquires if the third may belong to someone else. The writer, though poor, wishes to use what little influence she has and what money she can spare to further the Non-Resistance and Anti-Slavery causes. "I will never give another cent to support such a Minister who can live in pleasure while the slaves are in bondage ..."

To "Dear friend" Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

No.144

Watertown, Mass.. The writer has determined not to comply with the addressee's request that he speak some evening at the fair. Explains the reasons: the directing spirit of both the Mass. and the American Antislavery societies seems to the writer narrow and intolerant. Gives examples, as the assertion that no abolitionist can consistently remain in a pro-slavery church or party. Recalls that "the treatment a man differing from ourselves receives in our meetings, is such as to prevent anyone from wishing to bear it more than once." The writer's decision rests mainly on his seeing no reason why the Chronotype should be considered less fit as an advertising medium than the Post Atlas.

	To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman	No.14

West Brookfield, (Mass.). The writer tells of selling books in Rochester, and lecturing in Hopedale, Milford and West Brookfield. Encountered opposition in most of the places she visited. Cannot spend enough time in each town, and thinks that this lack of thoroughness merely prepares the way for the Liberty Party.

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman No.27

West Roxbury, Mass.. "All my numerous slight reasons for refusing my name to the advertisement of the 'Fair' are vanished since witnessing the miserable state of the public spirit in Boston concerning the poor slave now in prison..." The writer will now sign the advertisement "with real delight."
A.L.S. 3p. 9 5/8 x 8 1/8 in.

Refers to the arrest and imprisonment of the fugitive slave George Latimer.

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

No.114

West Roxbury, Mass.: Mr. (Theodore) Parker has promised to contribute to the Liberty Bell. The writer regrets that she has not been inspired. The poetry in the Latimer Journal gave great delight: "our young people sang the songs to their affixed tunes..." At the house of her sister (Mrs. Eliza Lee (Cabot) Follen) all were assembled to read Dickens, when Frank (Francis George) Shaw came in and told them that Latimer would probably be free today. "We hear too that Gray has sneaked off!" The writer supposes that Abolition women know the whereabouts of Latimer's wife and child.

West Roxbury, Mass. Enclodes the lines to Harriet Martineau by Richard Monckton Milnes. Refers to a note at the bottom. Sends also a translation which "was the most difficult thing I ever did..." Offers three different titles for the addressee to choose. "I have wept over these lines because they are the first verses I have written alone for so many years - we did all such things together." The writer feels strongly about "this poor slave in our jail."

A.L.S. 2 p. 12 1/2 x 7 3/4 in.

Postscript: "I have had a letter from H. Martineau & alas she is no better."

West Roxbury, Mass.: The writer, on her return from Hingham and Cohasset, urges the addressee, with Henry (G.Chapman, jr.), to visit her at her "cool & quiet" house. Has had "various anti-slavery 'experiences'" and a good talk with Jairus Lincoln. Asks why the Standard is sold at so low a price and why it is cheaper than the Liberator. Thinks it preferable to have the Standard properly paid for by subscribers "than to tax A. B. and C. to support it for them."
A.L.S. 2 p. 10 7/8 x 8 1/2 in.

In a postscript the writer praises the addressee's contributions to the Liberator, mentioning especially her remarks on Peabody's article.

Cannot ask "Aunt Mary Rotch" for a donation, as she would give only as a favor to the writer. Describes this lady as kind to the blacks, but having "some stiff notions about societies." The writer will pen something for the Liberty Bell, and is doing what she can for the fair, but sees no way of getting money now. Describes the (Wendell?) Phillips' habit of giving. Suggests that the addressee ask Mary Gow to write for the Liberty Bell, inquiring if she has obtained Emily Taylor, and is pleased that [redacted] got something from Harriet Martineau.."

West Roxbury, Mass.. The writer sends proof of the address with such names as she could obtain. "Sarah Russell says she cannot put her name to the last paragraph because for her it is a falsehood." Sarah Shaw and Sarah Atkinson have the same objection, also Susan (Cabot). Suggests omitting or modifying the passage so as to "leave out the false declaration that these new folks have devoted their best years to the cause." The writer remarks that she has not done much, "but having given the years of my union with my husband I have given my best days." The writer will send her article for the Liberty Bell, "& remember I shall not... if you reject it - say you are right & try again - so do not hesitate - " also deal with the movements of George Thompson.

Monday, Sept.28; News brought by Miss Parker that Thompson had been mobbed at Abington and hit on the cheek with a stone. Meeting of the Mass. Anti-Slavery Society. Resolutions introduced by May in reference to Daniel Webster and resolutions passed at the pro-slavery meeting. Deacon Gulliver & Garrison nominated to frame a resolution expressing sentiment toward Thompson. "Then Thompson made a most beautiful speech."

Monday, October 5; At the meeting of the Mass. Anti-Slavery Society "Thompson spoke and repelled the Andover slander"

Monday, October 12; The notice of "the ladies' meeting when Thompson would address" had been sent to all the churches, but was read only at Dr. Channing's, at the Old South, at Mr. Adin's, Ballou's and at Mr. Motte's.

Relates how George Bradburn, invited to speak at a temperance meeting, fled on seeing Nathaniel Colver. Mr. Amos Bronson Alcott has no lights in his house "because he will not sanction killing whale." The writer has written several articles for the Offering, which will "get along somehow till the 20th of March when Collins is expected." Mentions the kind hospitality of Henrietta Sargent. "I don't think L.M.C. Lydia Maria Child? treats them  Sargents, with all the attention she might." Weymouth are interested in the Herald of Freedom, which almost  out the Liberator." Abby Kelley thinks of joining the Community (Brook Farm). "Mr. George Ripley highly admires her . . ."

Weymouth, Mass.. The writer attended a community meeting at the Ripleys. Mr. George Ripley declared "he never went to bed in his life so little tired as now after working in the field all day." The writer thought Mrs. Sophia W. (Dana) Ripley "inferior, not at all more remarkable than Anna Alvord. She was anxious to assure her own mind that... the canons of gentility were not infringed upon." The writer "rather liked" Elizabeth Peabody. While visiting, the writer read part of Combe's Tour; quotes his reference to the addressees. Reports the death of Miss Paul. The writer attended an interesting meeting of the Norfolk (Anti-Slavery) Society in Dorchester. Received a note from Harriet Martineau, thanking for "Liberty."

Weymouth, Mass.. David Lee Child's piece "Where are we" (in the National Anti-Slavery Standard) has stirred up Abby Kelley. The writer does not think that she will "satisfy or enlighten Abby." A letter came from Child, "defending his course about Lewis Tappan." The writer went to the Southwicks to see Abby Kelley and found her "looking well as to beauty tho delicate as to health." Abby Kelley was pleased with the Liberty Party meeting in Buffalo, where she spoke in behalf of the American A. S. Society. But the "New Orgs from the East, Henry B. Stanton & the rest, felt very bad about her speaking and hated her. Abby thinks that multitudes of good honest folks from Ohio New York were present who really thought the American Society a Non Resistant Society, and that she was enabled to undeceive them." The writer explains why the request is made every year even though it is always refused. The Universalist Meeting House is available, but the Orthodox parishioners won't go there. Says that the pro-Slavery Orthodox churches protect their followers from Anti-Slavery doctrine. "Could the infamous war with Mexico continue another month were all the churches of the Free states thrown freely open to the Anti-Slavery lectures?" Gives general arguments in favor of allowing the Abolitionists to use the church.

Weymouth, Mass.: A copied extract from a letter by A. W. Weston. The writer received a note from Miss (Harriet) Martineau enclosing two articles for the Liberty Bell, one by "the venerable Mrs. Fletcher late of Edinburgh," the other by "our beloved Jane Arnold." The writer comments: "Mrs. Fletchers is a good sensible piece. Jane's is very so so, but seeing it is she Jane Arnold why, I suppose it will grace the Bell."

Further quotes H. Martineau: "I can give you no idea what it has been to me to meet your sister. It will do me good the rest of my life."

The writer daily observes political selfishness at work. "All this mingling of reasoning & feeling sprung up in my mind on hearing a pro-slavery patriot rail against Europe." To those who imagine the writer identified in feeling with the English nobility she replies; "It is no part of my mission to defend Duchesses." Discourses on the wrong attitude of American patriots toward the Lancashire cotton workers. "Garrison is shining at this hour in contrast with Pillsbury & Co." The writer had a note from C(harles) Follen "saying he was off like a shot for Port Royal." Refers to General (David) Hunter's proclamation declaring the slaves of rebel states as free. "Our defeat before Richmond from not having drilled the blacks a year ago." Mentions the death of Mrs. Howe. James Lowell, son of Charles was killed last week in battle.

(Weymouth, Mass.). "The moral sense of the great majority of even the abolitionists has been destroyed by it (the war) imperceptibly & they show an affinity for the dark ages...Carri-son is untouched by this madness - but I see very few others able to stand the strain of this revolution. I should say, of public men Sumner stood it best." Believes there will be a second great uprising "to force the war to a conclusion by breaking down slavery..." Points out that the result of the "delays before Richmond" does not in itself mean disaster; "it is that the army is a skeleton. These things are not permitted to be told..." Refers to a little New Hampshire town that sent 17 men to the army of the Potomac. They are all dead; -not in battle." Of a New England regiment that started for the Potomac 900 strong, 60 are left. "McClellan's prestige is fading out." Enumerates some encouraging features, such as the...

the confiscation bill, "in effect an Emancipation bill with clogs on." Reports that young (James) Lowell "is alive after all, or was. He was carried to a farm-house off the field." (Edward) Dicey has just left; the addressee will soon see him, for he sails tomorrow. Records English criticism of McClellan. But Wells Alvord and George Welles, having just returned, told Ann Alvord that "McClellan was all that was adorable. They & the army swore by him." The writer does not "expect to have a cent when the war ends"; but that does not trouble her. Reports that "Gen. Butler is before the committee of examination on charge of peculation in army contracts. It seems incredible..." A.L. 8p. 8 x 4 7/8 in.

Weymouth, Mass., "The recruiting goes on slowly. Hesse has enlisted, & 45 others ..." Doesn't think England will interfere in the Civil War. Says that "little Henry Cowing(?)" has gone to a war camp in Maryland. Criticizes Cassius M. Clay for playing into the hands of an English political faction which favored war. Discusses free trade at length. Mentions a book by Victor Hugo. Says that there is much "politesse proportionnée" in a monarchist country.

Weymouth, Mass., The writer says she has met a number of pro-Slavery people who have changed their minds. Some people favor carrying "republican institutions" through Europe "by fire & sword." Comments on William Henry Seward, Fremont and other political figures. Thinks Lincoln will be re-elected. Tells about John Forbes's patriotic activities. Objects to the taunting of pro-Slavery penitents. Praises a sermon by Edward L. Pierce. Thinks the rising generation will handle the problems of the freed slaves better than the old Abolitionists. Refers to the effect of the public debt when the war industries slack off. Received a portrait of Robert Gould Shaw from his mother. [redacted] Writer and Garrison agree that England should not be charged with responsibility for Weymouth (Mass.). The writer wrote a long letter to the addressee which she never received, as her sister Anne (Chapman) did not choose to forward it because in it the writer mentioned Harriet Martineau, "who has insulted Lizzy so." From this starting-point the writer brings into relief the emotional and injudicious intolerance of differences which now prevails. "Why hate, or be sorry, that another cannot think as we do?" The writer favors Lincoln "because, to a progressive domestic policy, he adds a friendly foreign one." Objects to "bullying" the government, as Wendell (Phillips) advises. The writer cannot counsel "violence or passion interference or obtrusion." Nor would she write to her daughters after learning "that you did not want to hear from me as I am - & not made up into
